CATS FOR THE HONEYMOON,

How a New Yorker Evens up au Old Score Against a Friend,

New York Hero'd, Louis Evan Shipman is said to be a wealthy merchant of this city, who is extensively interested in the metal business throughout the country. He lives in style, enjoys all the luxuries that money can purchase and moves in the best society.

Under the heading of "Dogs, Birds, &c.," the following advertisement ap-peared in yesterday's Herald:

pourful III yesterday's Herdda.

N.B.-A. cat will receive best of care and attention in a Uopjan bome; the animal should possess exceptional combative abilities and he able to withstand the rarefied atmosphere of the country; any one sendings such near will receive a check by return of mail. Address LOUIS EVAN SHITMAN, Berkeley Springs, Morgan county, W. Va., via United Sintes Express Company.

Persons who are well acquainted with Persons who are well acquainted with Mr. Shipman were astonished when they read the advertisement. At the clubs Mr. Shipman is in the babit of visiting it was made the subject of nuch gossip. Was it possible that Mr. Shipman had deserted the metal business for the cat traffic?

Some of Mr. Shipman's friends were indignant that such a thought should emanate from any mind. There were not a few who began to smile later in the day, however, when the announcement was made public that Mr. Shipman had only been married last week, and was now enjoying his honeymoon at the Homestead, Berkeley Springs, W. Va. YES, IT WAS A JOKE.

Every one then appreciated that the advertisement simply had been inserted in the Herald as a joke. It did did not take long to fix upon the supposed perpetrators. The fact was recalled that eighteen months ago Irving T. Smith, who is a lawyer and lives at No. 860 St. Mark's avenue, Brooklyn, was married to one of the most charming halles in society.

A brilliant reception followed the wedding. Mr. Smith and Mr. Shipman had been boson companions for years, and during all that time had devoted considerable time to practical jokes upon their friends. The night of Mr. Smith's wedding was evential. Mr. Shipment had bribed the driver of the carriage to see nothing that was going on in the street while Mr. Smith and his bride were preparing for their honeymoon trip.

Mr. Shipman, with a half smothered laugh, a hammer and some little tacks, went to work and attached a big white placard to the top of the carrirge door. Printed in big black letters were these

. THIS COUPLE JUST MARRIED.

Mr. Smith and his bride got into the carriage. There was a storm of rice and old shoes, and with a crack of the driver's whip the couple and the conspicuous placard were rolling toward the

THE SIGN MADE THEM LAUGH,

The carriage was driven up to one of the most fashionable hotels in this city. True to his agreement the driver turned the placarded side of the carriage to wards the hotel, where the glow of the gas lamps displayed it to the best ad-antage. In a few seconds a crowd gathered and set up a howl of laughter. Then Mr. Smith grew indignant, and his pretty bride turned red with mortification.

Mr. Smith did not realize that he had been the victim of a joke until the driver yelled at him:

"Say, mister, are you through with the sign yet?"
When he turned and saw the sign that had accompanied him all the way from Brooklyn he disappeared through the door as quickly as possible. Re-turning from his honeymoon he ac-cused Mr. Shipman of being at the bottom of the joke.

SMITH SAID HE'D "GET EVEN," Mr. Shipman acknowledged that he was, and several bottles of wine were opened to wash away any suggestion of unfriendliness. When they parted company that day Mr. Smith remarked: "I'll get even with you if it takes years." I went to the home of Mr. Smith, in Brooklyn, when I heard this story. His bouse is in the centre of a big lawn dotted with shrubbery, flowers and a statuesque fountain. It is on the cor-ner of St. Mark's and Brooklyn avenues, one of the most fashionable sec-tions of the city. Mr. Smith was not at tions of the city. Mr. Smith was not at home. He is in the country with his family.

I saw Mr. Smith's aunt and showed her the advertisement for cats. She broke into laughter and the entire household joined her. "That's only a joke and a good one at that," said she. "My nephew put that in to get even with Mr. Shipman, who eighteen months ago sent him on his wedding trip with a placard on the carriage that he had just been married. He said he would geteven with him for the joke. My! won't there be a lot of cats cent to Louis and his bride!"

ABOUT FLOGGING.

Corporal Punishment in Schools a Relic of Barbarism.

Right upon the heels of the trial of a Wood county school teacher for crueily whipping one of his pupils comes the report that the superintendent of schools of Wirt county is to be presented to

of Wirt county is to be presented to the grand jury for inercilessly beating a pupil in the Elizabeth school where he is engaged as one of the teachers.

The days of the ox-gad as an instrument of development and a means of educational grace are about gone. The teacher who cannot get along without tattooing the backs and legs of his pupils black and blue would better be engaged in other business. The gentle art of prize fighting would probably be better indupted to his tastes and talents. The old schoolmaster who thrashed his pupils regularly three times a day because he enjoyed it and because he thought the physical exercise would do the pupils good, has had his day. He may have done much good and probably did, just as the asperities of Puritan life resulted at last in better things, but the school "master" has no more place in modern education than the witchburner has. To cut a hole in the hide with a whip is not a quick or desirable way to reach the heart or the brain. The new and better education does not include body pounding in its curricu-

Ordinarily, in the common disagree ments between the tencher on the one side and the pupil and parent on the other, our sympathies are with the teacher. We believe that as a usual thing the teacher is right and the child is wrong, and parents and the public should stand by the teacher so long as he shows reasonable kindness, capa-bility and judgment. Punishment is sometimes necessary, oftener in some schools than in others, but brutal punishment is never justifiable. There are a thousand ways of punishing a child besides resorting to the rod, and the teacher should display as much judgment in his methods of correcting to the product of the rod o judgment in his methods of correcting as in his methods of teaching. It is not right to make the whip cover all the multitude of sins of which the industrious and active American boy is capable of committing. And even in the rare cases when it becomes necessary to resort to corporal punishment there should be great moderation. No teacher his the right to brutally beat any child, and parents who have the proper child, and parents who have the prope love and care for their children will not permit such outrages. A teacher should have a good deal of the milk of human kindness, and it should not be blue skimmed milk, either.

M'KINLEY TO NEAL,

The Governor Shows Up One of the Demo

At Washington C. H. Governor Mc-Kinley referred, in the strongest language possible, to Mr. Neal's charge that he had accepted the resignation of Chief Inspector of Workshops and Factories McDonald, and thus condoned tories McDonald, and thus condoned his misappropriation of state funds. He showed how the exposure of McDonald's wrongdoing had been made by a commission which he set in motion; that he had made him refund the money, and, refusing to accept his resignation, had dismissed him from office. This done, he gave the papers in the case to the Franklin county prosecuting attorney, who laid them before the grand jury, which body had found 120 indictments against McDonald, and he is now under ball for trial.

Mr. Neal knew better than this, the governor concluded, and nothing but a spirit of malignancy and appreciation of the desperate situation of his cause can account for so false and reckless a statement. To seek to make political capital out of it is unworthy any man and any candidate for governor, and is both malicious and unmanly.

When Governor McKinley concluded this portion of his address setting aside the malicious and these charges made the portion of its dates setting aside the malicious and false charges made against him by Mr. Neal, an applause as enthusiastic as any of the campaign greeted him. The despicable attack of the Democratic candidate has found no sympathy in the hearts of Ohio voters, and they gave evidence of that.

Public Lands.

Washington, Oct. 25.-The house committee on public lands this morning considered the Hudson resolution asking for an investigation of the Cherokee strip. The impression seems to be that so far specific evidence sufficient to authorize an investigation has not been submitted. Mr. Curtis, of Kansas, asked that action be withheld until he can get permission from par-ties in Oklahoma for the use of their names in evidence for submission before the committee.

Facts About Whisky.

Whisky is an article more adulterated than any other of the many agents which benefit mankind. A whisky to be pure and wholesome, besides being distilled from selected grain, should have age and care in maturing, and must be absolutely free from fusel oil. Such a whisky is Klein's Silver Age Rye. It has been used and prescribed by the best physicians, and has been pronunced without a rival as a stimulant. Duquesne Rye is a careful distillization of rye and malt and is highly recommended. Hrendstuffs and Provisions.
CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Repeal has spent its force.
That seemed to be to-day's verdiet in the wheat pit. Yesterday a mere rumar of the receal of siver purchase was sufficient to add 1½ cents to the price of wheat, and to-day with that rebeal in clear view the price declined aimost one cent.
Repeal, it was argued, will make wheat none the less over plentiful, and unless of ther the receipts become smaller or the foreign demand more urgent it can have no lasting influence
